Making Black Pottery

Read the passage. Underline one sentence that is new information.

IMAGE PLACEHOLDER

In the villages of Oaxaca, Mexico, potters have made beautiful black pottery for thousands of years. This craft takes time, skill, and practice.

Before making anything, the potter must prepare the clay. The potter digs clay from the earth and cleans it. Then the clay is wedged by pushing and folding it many times. Wedging removes air bubbles that could make the clay explode.

Next, the potter puts clay on a spinning wheel. The potter's wet hands press gently to center the clay. When the clay spins perfectly, the potter can shape it into a bowl, cup, or pot. Each vessel must be made carefully with steady hands.

IMAGE PLACEHOLDER

After shaping, the vessel dries slowly for several days. Then it goes into a special hot oven called a kiln. The kiln gets over 1,500 degrees hot. The clay bakes for many hours. When it comes out, the soft clay has become hard pottery that can last for hundreds of years.
